

COMMUNITY OF WARMTH

by Mark Keathley

Our journey through life comes in seasons. Sometimes we experience new growth like spring when things are budding and new. Other seasons bring hot summer stillness when we must explore our thoughts and feelings from the pressures of life and seek out some refreshing air or cool water. Often we experience bitterness and cold, but these frigid winds don't have to be depressing. They can motivate us to bundle up and play, go outdoors with friends or family, make memories with those we love, and spread cheer with those we meet along the way - things you will find in a Community of Warmth.
