EXCLUSIVE RELEASE

The holidays are all about time together as a family. The weather gets colder and the days get shorter, signaling to black bears that it's time to hibernate. I can only imagine how hard it must be for a tired mother bear to get her kids to sleep for that long. You know there's always one awake, just like so many of us were as kids staying up waiting for Santa. In this painting, one little mischievous bear cub is refusing to sleep, and he sees you!
